May I backlog service hours from the previous three years?

— High School Senior

Yes. All students may backlog any service hours completed, beginning with their freshman year of high school.

To backlog activity for previous years, students will add each year of service as a single entry in InnerView™.

Students should continue adding individual service activity for their current year of school.

Example A high school senior adds one entry for all of the hours served during ninth grade, and selects a date in that school year. The same process is followed for all service hours for grades ten and eleven, etc.
